

Are currency crises self-fulfilling ? The case of Argentina

BOINET Virginie, NAPOLITANO Oreste, SPAGNOLO Nicola

This paper analyses the 2002 Argentine crisis using the Jeanne and Masson (2000) model with sunspots. Testing this model empirically through a Markov-switching model suggests that self-fulfilling prophecies is a reasonable explanation for the devaluation of the peso.
